Development Studies 1
(30 ECTS credits)

The course description was approved by the Dean 24.06.2009.
Update approved by the Vice-Dean 02.09.2013.
Reading list updated 29.11.2018.
Changes may occur.

Introduction
Oslo Metropolitan University (OsloMet) offers a one semester full-time course (30 ECTS credits) in Development Studies in Vietnam. The course is a joint venture between OsloMet and Kulturstudier (Culture Studies), an independent Oslo-based organisation that offers international academic courses in the fields of culture and human development at study centres in Vietnam, India, Ghana, Argentina and Nicaragua. OsloMet offers interdisciplinary courses in development issues and North-South relations, leading to a Bachelor’s degree of 180 ECTS credits in Development Studies. Development Studies 1 is equivalent to the first half year of this Bachelor programme.

Development Studies 1 is taught through an interdisciplinary social science/humanistic approach incorporating elements of history, geography, social anthropology, political science, economics and sociology. The course activities (lectures, seminars, assignments, examination) as well as the literature are all in English. The first part of the course is web-based. After this, the students leave for Hoi An, Vietnam, to attend the regular course based on classroom teaching. During the 10 weeks in Vietnam there are normally lectures, seminars and group work on all weekdays. Weekends are free.

Target groups
Development Studies 1 directs itself to:

- Students who wish to include development studies as a part of a bachelor’s degree.
- Professionals (teachers, nurses, journalists, engineers etc.) and others who seek further education in international and multicultural issues.

Admission requirement
Applicants must qualify for university admission in Norway.

Objectives
The overall objective for Development Studies 1 is to give students an interdisciplinary understanding of global development with a focus on North-South relations and the South East Asian region. This holistic approach should provide a base for problem-based discussions, critical analysis and reflection.
The students should acquire knowledge of:

- Concepts of poverty and development.
- Globalisation, global history and global economy.
- Governance, people’s participation and human rights.
- Culture, gender and religious issues.
- Knowledge, development and social change.
- Population, migration and rural-urban dimensions of poverty.
- Local action and international co-operation for poverty reduction.

Contents

Introducing development studies
This first part provides a set of readings that explore basic development concepts and introduce some of the theories and approaches within development. Students discuss three concepts in an introductory paper: development, poverty, and sustainable development, and consider how development is understood from a variety of perspectives. This part of the course is entirely web-based.

Research design and field methodology
Students will be given an introduction to research methodology. Covered by three lectures, qualitative and quantitative research methods, research design and evaluation of primary data will be presented. Field ethics will also be emphasized.

History, politics and economic development, globalisation and democracy
The course covers development initiatives that take place at global, national and local levels, current trends in development and development theories, and draws on political and economic theories. Processes of globalization will be discussed, such as global patterns of resource distribution and their effect on both poverty levels and the environment in various parts of the world, questioning how power relations are reflected in these patterns. This will include discussion of the global economy, international trade, debt, and international institutions like the World Trade Organization (WTO), International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank. Policies and practices of national governments, and actions at a community level by NGOs and local organizations, will be considered in terms of their impact on poverty and environmental concerns, including attention to human rights and the control people have over their own lives.

Population, environment and livelihood
The overall topic of this part of the course is material living conditions in developing countries, especially among the poor. Central issues are questions of environmental sustainability, food security and famine, health problems and health care, migration and demography. It includes consideration of the many ways in which poor people try to make a living.

Culture, gender and knowledge
This part directs itself to the level of people’s lives and the conditions for change. We study the impact of culture on development and the social context of people’s interactions. The main concepts are identity, ethnicity, nationalism, religion and the influence of gender on social life and work relations. We also include the role of learning and knowledge for people to improve their life situation.
Regional focus: South East Asia / Vietnam
Here we look at South East Asia in general, and Vietnam in particular, in order to exemplify the development topics and debates outlined in the previous parts of the course. You will be introduced to the position of South East Asia in the global system. The varied contemporary social, economic and political structures found in the region will be outlined and their cultural and historical origins explored. An examination of the nature and relative success of various South East Asian developments will also be presented.

Organisation and requirements
As part of the course, students complete one compulsory assignment, one group examination and one home examination. The Study Guide of the course will give details about deadlines defined by OsloMet.

Coursework Requirements
The following coursework requirement must be met before the examination may be sat:

- Introductory assignment. This is a paper of approx. 1800 words (+/- 10%) / approx. 4-5 pages, where students are asked to discuss the concepts of development, poverty and sustainable development. At this stage, all communication between student and teachers is based on e-mail. The paper is to be submitted through e-mail before students go to Vietnam. It will be assessed within the following week.

The coursework requirements must be met within fixed deadlines. The requirement must also be met by students with valid absence from classes documented by medical certificate. Students, who, due to illness or other valid and documented reasons, do not meet the coursework requirement within the fixed deadlines, may be given a new deadline. A new deadline for meeting the coursework requirement is in each individual case given by the teacher of the course in question.

The coursework requirement is evaluated approved/not approved. Students who meet the coursework requirement within the fixed deadline, but get the evaluation not approved, are entitled to maximum two new attempts to fulfil the requirement. A new deadline for meeting the coursework requirement is in each individual case given by the teacher of the course in question.

Examinations
Group examination and individual home examination
At the beginning of their stay in Vietnam, the students form groups of 3-5 persons. The purposes of these groups are to work on current topics from the lectures and literature, and to complete the group examination. There will be a seminar on how to write papers, in which the seminar teacher will suggest topics of relevance. The seminar teacher is instrumental in forming the groups and supervising them during the writing process.

- The group examination is linked to the topics of the course as a whole. This is a paper on a topic of each group's own choosing, of approx. 10 800 words (+/- 10 %) / approx. 25-30 pages, which the students write in groups during their stay in Vietnam. Here, they shall combine perspectives from the literature and lectures, preferably link up with empirical cases from the region of South East Asia, while drawing on literature that the group finds relevant. The paper shall be submitted within the given deadline. The group examination is given a mark A-F.
• Individual home examination, i.e. an essay of approx. 4400 words (+/- 10 %)/approx. 10-12 pages, where students shall prove their analytical skills and understanding in the discussion of a given topic. The individual home examination is given a mark A-F.

Final Assessment
The students’ academic performance is assessed on the basis of the group examination and the individual home examination (see above).

The student will be awarded a composite grade where the group examination counts 40 % and the individual home examination counts 60 % of the final mark.

Both the group paper and the individual home examination are assessed by one internal and one external examiner.

Grading Scale
Grading scale will be according to the ECTS-grading scale, ranging from A (outstanding) to F (not approved).

Criteria for the different grades

A  Outstanding

An outstanding performance. The assignment paper/performance documents outstanding subject knowledge and an outstanding degree of independence and ability in relating subject knowledge to the educational goals of the course.

B  Very good

A very good performance, well above the average. The assignment paper/performance documents very good subject knowledge and a high degree of independence and ability in relating subject knowledge to the educational goals of the course.

C  Good

An average performance. The assignment paper/performance documents a fair level of subject knowledge and some degree independence and ability in relating subject knowledge to the educational goals of the course.

D  Fairly good

A performance below average. The assignment paper/performance documents a level of subject knowledge with some deficiency, and shows a lesser degree of independence and ability in relating subject knowledge to the educational goals of the course.

E  Adequate

A performance satisfying the minimum requirements. The assignment paper/performance documents low degree of subject knowledge, and shows a low level of independence and ability in relating subject knowledge to the educational goals of the course.

F  Not approved

The assignment paper/performance does not satisfy minimum requirements.
New or postponed examination

Students who fail their group examination, or who pass but wish to improve their grade, may submit a revised version of their group paper or write an individual paper, 4,400 words +/- 10%, on a topic related to the curriculum. The deadline for such papers coincides with the deadline for general evaluation the following term. Likewise, those who either fail their individual home examination or wish to improve their grade may submit a new paper in connection with the ordinary examinations the following term. This also applies for students with valid absence.

Regulations for new or postponed examinations are available in Regulations relating to studies and examinations at OsloMet. Students must register for a new or postponed examination.

Reading list

The reading list comprises approximately 1700 pages (compulsory), of which approximately 500 pages are related to Southeast Asia and Vietnam. In addition the students must read 300 pages of their own choice (must be approved by the teacher).

Titles in the list marked with * are from books that the students must buy. (All other titles will be available in a compendium.) Any change in the reading list must be done within the beginning of the course and must be approved by the Head of the Department of International Studies and Interpreting.

Part 1: Introducing Development Studies - Self-study 204 pages

Part 2: Macro and Micro Perspectives on Development 956 pages

UNESCO 1990 World Declaration on Education for All http://www.unesco.org/education/pdf/JOMTIE_E.PDF optional

http://apps.who.int/iris/bitstream/10665/180224/1/ccsbrief_vnm_en.pdf?ua=1

Part 3: Regional Focus: South East Asia/Vietnam 404 pages

